

1. One day, after many months of travelling across land and sea, a Christian called Saint George arrived in a small town. He met a poor man who told him about a terrible dragon that was terrorising the town.

2. The dragon had forced the villagers to sacrifice a beautiful maiden every day to keep him happy. Now the only maiden that was left was the king's daughter. The town's only hope was to find a brave knight to slay the dragon. As a reward, the brave knight would be allowed to marry the king's daughter.

3. Saint George wanted to slay the dragon and save the princess. So, the next day he woke early and told the princess to stay at home. George then rode to the valley where the dragon lived.

4. As soon as the dragon saw Saint George, it charged at him. Saint George tried to use his spear on the dragon, but the dragon's scales were too hard. They broke the spear into a thousand pieces!

5. Saint George fell from his frightened horse. Luckily, he rolled under an enchanted orange tree which protected him from the venomous dragon, until he found the strength to fight again.

6. Saint George attacked the dragon with his sword but the dragon poured venom onto George's armour, causing it to split in two. Saint George rested under the enchanted orange tree again.

7. Saint George then launched his third and final attack on the dragon, stabbing it under its wing where there were no scales. The dragon fell dead at his feet.

8. George returned to the town. The people were delighted and were so impressed by his bravery that they became Christians too.
